When people encounter wildlife it creates an emotional connection that leads to curiosity & openness towards wildlife education. This creates willingness to support conservation.

Wild Wonders aim is to give more people greater opportunities to encounter our native wildlife.

A photograph showing two people from behind, looking out at a vast blue ocean. In the distance, two whales are visible, one breaching the water. The scene is bright and clear.

The Land Down Under in conjunction with Wild Wonders is dedicated to supporting conservation of all Australia's native wildlife species and also to Wildlife and Nature Tourism within Australia and its islands.

Many of us know the feeling of a hug from a wombat or to hear the howl of a dingo – to hear the kookaburra laugh and to see an Emu run. We have gazed out across the views of this ancient land that seemingly has no end. We have submerged ourselves in our turquoise seas and been in awe at our rugged coastlines and have felt the beating heart of the outback at Uluru.

Join us and together lets show the world our incredible country and the wildlife that go hand in hand to create this amazing country - Australia.
